

Teaching English as a Lingua Franca (ELF) What and How?

ONLINE TRAIN-THE-TRAINER COURSE

In this two-day training course, we will give you an overview of academic research and discussions about ELF. We will show how the development of English as a global lingua franca affects all areas of teaching English — from the “basics” to methods and to pragmatics, i.e. social skills such as context-relevant appropriacy, politeness, flexibility and more. The Council of Europe’s new Companion Volume to the Common European Framework of Reference of Languages (2018 / 2020) provides many valuable insights. We will show how these can be transferred into teaching material and training methods to give learners the most useful skills in English in the 21st century. The course will be highly interactive. Some of the points addressed will be

- ELF: The state of the art
- Answers given by the CEFR-Companion Volume
- Examples from good practice
- Methods for teaching ELF
- Sources for useful material
